

The P. U. S. - Subdivision of classes.

I should like to acknowledge the hearty co-operation of these ^{our} teachers who have undertaken the work of the U. School. The ~~work~~ ^{work} of the pupils both in school & families is called to be exceptionally good. One year the manner noted that the unsolicited papers were at the rate of 3%. The work of schools & families alike works had the free use of books gives coherence, continually renewed interest to the pupils' work, & the terminal examinations give the opportunity of later persons with the teachers' confidence by sending home the uncorrected papers. These are found to be very interesting indeed to the families of the children. Indeed these papers, few & far between, are being stored in the family archives. In early days comparatively few parents sent packages for the return of their children's examinations. Papers there was more pleasure than their children's work returned. It is in my opinion, commendable ourselves (all are of the U. S.) on the fact that good & exceptionally good educational work is being done by ~~the school~~ in the school. Of the 1000 children working in the school I was above families now in school, nearly all the families make good average, as do ~~the~~ ^{of} the schools in which every third day, his or her own books - all the books set before a little afraid that the work of school is too expensive that they send the books instead of giving the parents to make them. Why I say that almost all parents have funds together the money from their children, as well as the money from the school.

It is difficult when all excellent teachers in the department are syllabus, have examination paper committee have the decision in a day for each class course the have the decision.

And this is by no means an accidental oversight on matter of convenience in carrying out the work. It rests upon three essential Principles of the P. U. S. — principles upon which these three v

Vital education depends (9) ...
A & B agrees that a child y/c ... other stages (6) ... a liberal education is not possible without a series of books
... to make it possible that books

(b) that a child should not be confined to his bed - books

(3) That a child should not be compelled that he can feel Memphis is queer One should have already considerable books. This does not apply if at least thirty years in considerable books. This does not imply

At least 1000 copies are now being made in use.

When the question occurs how infit is possible for children to work

When the question occurs how will it be treated (and) elimination of the same books are the imperfections
The down ^{to} commitments elimination

(last year) portion of the ^{the} annual estimate submitted last year. The question ~~from~~ annual estimate submitted should be the heads of the form instead of these heads occur in the summer time when the school year should depend in class II upon progress in higher grammar, history and reading. In class III upon these upon composition.

in class IV upon facility in modern languages, style in English and success in Mathematics.

Teachers may think it well to take other subjects or questions such as diligence, with consideration for the young name should be entirely determined by the elder minister or elders.

